Local and General

Jas. Robertson was a visitor to Calgary for the week end.

L. V. Bliss has accepted the position as manager of the elevator of the Washington Alberta Land Co.

Mervil Donald was home for a few days this week.

Two car load of hogs were shipped during the week by Messrs. Outkes and Thomas.

Mrs. A. W. Gordon spent a few days in Calgary during this week.

Master Eddy Wolode, who had misfortune to break his arm some time ago, is progressing favourably.

R. H. Hunter, late of the local Bank of Commerce staff, now of Lethbridge, is spending a holiday here.

E. S. McRory has had the misfortune to burn his left hand badly and for the present he is unable to use it.

W. B. Edward is shipping three car load of cattle. All these cattle have been purchased from farmers in or near Crossfield.

The senior room of the Crossfield school was closed on Tuesday owing to the illness of the principal Miss Harrop.

Miss Reid, who has been spending a vacation in Crossfield, left for her home in Madison, Wis., Conn., on Tuesday last.

Willard Graham and family, of Banff, arrived in town on Monday. Mr. Graham has taken charge of the threshing outfit of Fike and McKay.

Call at the Chronicle Office and have a look through our Specimen Book of Private Greeting Cards.

T. Fisher, brother to V. Fisher, of Crossfield, who has been working for S. Fleming during the summer left for his home down east this morning.

Mr. Sneath, official auditor, for the Department of Municipal Affairs made an inspection of the books of the Village on Wednesday. He reports the records to be in a satisfactory condition.

E. H. Morrow was a visitor to Calgary on Saturday last, where he met Mrs. McMichael, who intends to make an extended visit with Mr. and Mrs. Morrow.

If you require to renew your old loan or take out a new one call and see me, as I can save you money. I represent the N. of Scotland Can. Mortgage Co., The Canada Life, and others. CHAS. HULTUREN.

The following parties sold cattle to W. B. Edward, Wm. Graham, Dog Pound, Gazeley Bros., Mrs. Tyson, of Cremona; Weatherhead, and Alex. Moor, the different lots were all brought to town for shipment at the beginning of the week.

What could be nicer than to send a private Greeting Card to your friends and relations for Christmas. Call at the Chronicle Office and see our specimens.

We hear that the managers of the local elevators state that the grain which has been marketed to date is of excellent quality, and the yield is exceptionally good.

Let McRory and Sons give you a figure on overhauling or furnace work now that you are assured of a bumper crop.

STORM SUPERSTITIONS

An Aerolite Fires a Village and Wipes
It Out of Existence

The recent terrific storms which swept over Spain has created a large crop of weird stories. Here is one which has just been received.
The village of Alcegar, near Valencia, has been practically wiped out and the surrounding country ravaged by an aerolite of great size and force. Shortly after noon there dropped from a cloudless sky a great ball of fire, a glowing sphere of incandescent light like a thousand rifle shots resounded through the atmosphere, and scattering tongues of flame, in all directions, the heavy mass buried itself in the earth.

The whole population of Alcegar was set on fire, and within an hour nothing but blackened masses of smouldering clinders remained, of farmhouse, har-lots and gathered crops of wheat, olive,
and olives.

The whole population of Alcegar was at the moment attending a religious service in the church, some two miles distant, for that circumstance the loss of life would have been terrible. As it was five persons were seriously hurt, one being succeeded to his injuries the same evening.
At the moment the aerolite fell Alcegar a terrific thunderstorm, which was accompanied by a rain of stones, some the size of oranges and weighing in many two pounds, burst over the neighboring villages of Benavites and Cauril.

The ground was covered in places to a depth of five inches by these stones. A pungent odor of sulphur permeated the locality for hours after the phenomenon.

Relieves Asthma at Little Expense.
Thousands of dollars have been vainly spent upon remedies for asthma and asthma, it ever with any relief. Dr.
J. C. B. A. Kellough's Asthma Remedy, despite its assurance of benefit, costs so little that it is within reach of all. It is the national remedy for asthma, far removed from the class of doubtful and experimental preparations. Your dealer can supply it.

Maxims for the Married

Never both be angry at the same time.

Never taunt with past error.

Never allow a request to be repeated.

Never meet without a loving welcome.

Let self-denial be the daily practice of each.

Neglect everyone else, even the whole world, rather than each other.

Never let the sun go down upon your grievance.

Never speak loudly to each other, unless the house is on fire.

Never make a remark at the other's expense—it is a meanness.

Never quarrel over what might have been, but make the most of what is.

Never part for the day without a loving or gentle word to think of during absence.

Never mind fault unless it is perfectly certain a fault has been committed, and always speak lovingly.

Women Succeed as Bankers

The possibilities of banking as a career for women have been demonstrated by the success of the Women who was inaugurated a couple of years ago in London, England, and which managed entirely by women, proved so successful that it was recently moved to new and enlarged quarters.

The bank's success, in the opinion of Mrs. Kate Kelly, the managers, is largely due to the hearty support it has received from women.

In an interview she said: The campaign with which women of all classes and from all parts of the empire, took up the idea of an institution devoted entirely to their needs was in itself a proof that Parnell's novel departure was fulfilling a long-felt want.

Our bank gives women the privilege of consulting one of their own sex
over their business affairs.
The business transacted here is precisely the same as that transacted by any other joint stock bank, and the fact that all our staff consists of women is good evidence that one sex is not more gifted than the other in accuracy and a head for figures.

A feature of our establishment here is a rendezvous room for our clients, where they can meet their friends and write letters.

At a railway station in a small town a solitary traveller was waiting for the day's only train. Train time came and went, but no train. He went over to the station master, an old darker. Say, when does today's train get here, anyway?

Oh, dat train won't be in for a long time yet.

In a few minutes, however, a train was seen crawling toward the station.
There comes the train! exclaimed the traveller, excitedly to the darker.
Seems to me you don't know your business, if I'm not mistaken.

Say, mister, replied the darker, I reckon you's a perfect stranger around here. Dat's yesterday's train, dat is.
Today's train won't be in 'til to-morrow.

Austria and Toronto Exhibition

The introduction of a steamship service between Canada and Austria
by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company has already demonstrated its possibilities in bringing the two countries into closer touch with each other and the inauguration of Observation cars by the Government railways of that country was the initial step towards reuniting the people together.
This excellent work has been the means of arousing the enthusiasm and interest of the Austrian Government to a greater degree in an industrial direction, the natural and industrial wealth of the Dominion of Canada appealing to this country's interest in the future development of important industries in Canada, the Austrian Government got into touch with the promoters of the forthcoming exhibition at Toronto and through these offices one of the principal exhibits at this annual show will be that of the Austrian Government, which will occupy two hundred yards of space. It will be typical of Austria in very detail and over fifty firms, employing an aggregate of nearly one hundred thousand people, will be showing their various manufactures, which is further evidence of the desires of the Austrian Government to get into closer relationship with this great country of ours.

How Rock-feller Got His Start
When I was ten years old I had succeeded in earning five money. It was $50. I loaned it to a neighbor at 7 per cent interest. In a year the money earned me $2.50. From that time onward I determined to make money for me.

So writes David Rock-feller, who began to make a living almost as soon as he could work. At 10 he was earning 37 cents a day hosing
a neighbor's potato fields. In 1883, when he was 14, he left his Toga County, N.Y., birthplace for Cleveland.
There he got a job as office boy. Later he became a clerk; then cashier and bookkeeper for a meat-market store, and two friends managed to borrow enough money to take hold of a petrol-um refinery. Rock-feller saw wonderful possibilities in oil and he reached out for one refinery after another, until in 1887 he was able to organize the Standard Oil Trust. Six years later
Rock-feller was on the way to fabulous fortune. He has a genius for borrowing. Indeed, his start was made on borrowed capital plus genius.
He is said to have been worth less than $1,000 in his own right when he was 20. But the borrowed money worked for him until there was no further need to borrow.

Hope for the Chronic Dyspeptic.
Through lack of consideration of the body's great many persons show disorders of the digestive apparatus to endure until they become chronic, filling days and nights with suffering. To these a course of Parnell's Vegetable Pills is recommended as sure and speedy way to regain health. These pills are so specially compounded to combat dyspepsia and the many ills that follow in its train, and they are successful always.

A woman never admits that she was wrong.

I don't know about that, replied Mr.
Mockton. A number of them seem anxious to prove that they showed pretty poor judgment in selecting husbands.

Quite a little flutter was caused in prominent local circles the other evening, when a pleasant little pastime was suddenly interrupted. We were quite shocked when we first heard of this incident, but we trust that the authorities will see fit to exercise their prerogative of mercy and leniency, while they will at the same time point out the danger of these "little pastimes."

The Dance.

The dance inaugurated by the bachelors for Friday evening last was fairly well patronized, the ladies being greatly in the majority. The latter were quite two to one of the males attending, but this was as might have been expected seeing the season is rather early, and most of the men are busy in the harvest, and were hardly likely to lose a night's rest under the circumstances. Those who attended had a good time and thoroughly enjoyed themselves. Financially the venture was a failure.

The music was supplied by Messrs. Willis and Lockwood.

MILLS AND PLANTS
COMING TO CANADA

Result of Well-proved Provincial and Federal Protective Policies Applied to Pulpwood

According to a Montreal despatch to the Toronto Globe no industry in Quebec shows such phenomenal growth as the pulp and paper trade. It is only, however, within the past three or four years that this industry got upon its feet and received any attention from the business world. Previous to that time all the big mills on the continent were located south of the border, and the timber Canadian mills operating in a less remunerative field, were unable to make much headway. Careless methods of cutting and the heavy demands made upon the American foresters practically exhausted their available supplies of pulpwood and they turned to Canada.

For years American millowners were allowed to take out pulpwood from Quebec without let or hindrance. Some two or three years ago Sir Lester Gould put into force a measure prohibiting the exportation of pulpwood cut from Crown lands, which proved to be the beginning of the wonderful expansion of this industry. American manufacturers, knowing that they could not get pulpwood from Quebec Crown lands crossed the border, bought up limits and located their mills on this side of the line. In one year following the passing of the measure no less than nineteen pulp, paper and lumber companies were incorporated in Quebec, with a total capitalization of $41,709,000. This capital came largely from the United States, Great Britain and France, although Canadians contributed a considerable amount. Last year several of the newly-incorporated mills commenced production, while during 1913 a large number of others will commence active manufacturing.

A gratifying feature of the statistics in regard to the consumption of pulpwood shows that during the year a total of 1,346,910 cords of pulpwood cut in Canada, 866,042 of which were manufactured into pulp in Canadian mills, while 890,866 cords were exported in the raw or unmanufactured state. The total cut for 1912 shows an increase of 21½ per cent. over the figures for 1911, while the increase in the manufacture of pulpwood in Canada amounted to nearly 29 per cent., as compared with an increase in our exports of raw pulpwood of less than 17 per cent.

The importance of the pulp and paper industry to Canada is shown by the following table, which gives a total of 85 pulp and paper mills in Canada and Newfoundland, of which 53 are located in Canada. The table follows:

Firms	Can.	Nfld.	Total
Mills:	53	2	55
Paper	3	1	4
Pulp	70	2	72
Groundwood	45	2	47
Sulphite	17	1	18
Soda Pulp	5	0	5
Sulphate	3	0	3

Ontario and New Brunswick also have embargos on raw pulpwood practically compelling foreign capital to sink their money on this side of the international border and thus build up and enrich Canada. Our protective tariff has served a similar purpose by causing the transfer of many other classes of United States industries to this side of the line as many Eastern and Western towns know to their own advantage.

HELPS FARM PRODUCE

The strides that Ontario has made in the automobile industry in the past eight years were remarkably in evidence at the Motor Show recently held in Toronto. When the first auto show was held in 1905 there was scarcely a town outside of Toronto that had an automobile industry of any sort, either for the manufacture of cars or accessories. Now, in the eighth year, there are large manufacturers in Brantford, Orillia, Brockville, Oshawa, Windsor, St. Catharines, Berlin, Amherstburg, Petrolia, London, Ottawa, Bowmanville, Ingersoll, Guelph, Galt, Walkerville and Kingston. Every one of these industries centres provides a healthy market for the farm produce of the contiguous country.

SMOKE EATER'S LOVE

The Kiss That Came Before the Introduction.

By LOUISE MERRIFIELD.

Burke used to see her pass by the engine house every morning on her way to the paper box factory around the corner on Thompson street. She had never missed a day all summer long, and every morning a little before 7 o'clock Mrs. Burke would stroll out of the engine house carelessly, tip a chair back against the red brick wall and read the morning paper attentively in the paper box factory girls came by.

"Ah," he thought, the unobscured thing thought? So McManus would say with a swift, laughing side glance at the young woman, when she went by with a crowd of other girls. It was interesting paper it is, to be sure! But it won't be so interesting when Margery comes by."

Burke would color at the laughter which always followed, color darkly to the roots of his close curled brown hair, but never an answering glance would he send at the girls. All his glances were saved for Margery.

He could see her first minute she turned the corner of Fifth avenue and came down along Fifth street. She always took the shady side of the street, and the engine house was on that side. The other girls were cheerfully dressed with paper hats and fancy waltzes trimmed with cheap lace, but Margery was always in black and white, short, wavy, white hair, a white waist, freshly laundered, and knew, by her precious hands. There was no picture hat on her bonny brown hair, but a slight black veil and a swallow's wing on one side and a bunch of violets in a knot of ribbon.

It was the style of her that took his heart and eye the first time he ever saw her as she came along the street. Even the street car conductors would look after her and passengers obediently, and every child on the street would look up for a smile and a touch of her hand. It was just as she had, Burke thought, and she couldn't help it any more than an angel could help scattering blessings as it slipped by.

He had never spoken to her. He didn't even know if she was aware of his existence. After he had passed he would drop his eyes and stare at the red and black Chinese sign across the street and wonder how he could ever get acquainted with her. She wouldn't flirt like the other girls. He could tell that by the way she held her head up and went straight ahead, and she never seemed to have any chatter among the girls. McManus had told him her name one day. Sue was right in society and went to the fireman's hall, and the fireman's hall told him all the benefits just because she had a second cousin on a house cart up town in Harlem.

"There, I know who she is," Sue had laughed at him over the question. "She's forelady on the fifth floor over the lazees. Those are the girls who put in the here and there the fine boxes. She's all right, but she's stuck up because she has a brother that's a policeman over on Fifth street. He's got his tall yellow fellow. Maybe you know him—Jack O'Ferrall?"

"I know him," said Burke. "He's all right. She has reason to hold up her head over him."

Then he wondered how he could approach O'Ferrall. Every day he used to see him strolling down from Westington square, his white gloves spot less no matter what the weather was, his coat without a wrinkle and a smile that you felt the respect of everybody for they knew behind the smile were a handy net and a quick brain. No, Burke decided he couldn't tell O'Ferrall that he was in love with his sister just on the strength of seeing her walk by the engine house. He would wait and let fate and the little blind god join hands over his love.

It was a hot August day when the alarm sounded, and Burke jumped for his place as the engine pulled out. It had been dull all day, and he felt glad there was to be some relief at last. The true, natural born smoke eater from the first puff of smoke as he acted before the last strains of the overture, the first low ripple of applause from out in front. It is the logic call to action, and Burke felt his heart beat faster as the old engine began to get up speed and Neil and Captain swung into a good, long stride down the street under the trees.

"Where in it?" he asked his mate, Harvey. "Broadway?"

"No, Thompson street. Walker's paper box factory," answered Harvey.

Burke's square jaw set in hard lines.

The signal that were buttoning his coat rustled awfully.

Walker's paper box factory and Margery was up on the fifth floor. As the engine turned sharply into Thompson street he could see the factory, halfway down to Canal. Thick puffs of smoke jetted from the windows, with licking flames between, pale yellow in the bright sunlight.

"It's got a hold already," said Harvey. "There come some of the girls down the escapes."

Burke never answered. The engine pulled up short below Flecker. Over from Fifth avenue the look and ladder company was clanging and he took up the fifth floor of the factory, his blue eyes dark with dread.

The girls were trying the escapes but even so soon the iron was blistering hot, and their cries of pain made the crowd below shiver. There was a voice at his elbow, and Burke turned as he was on his way into the building. It was O'Ferrall, the policeman, and, under his helmet, his face was white and drawn.

"Burke, my sister's up there on the fifth floor. All the other girls are out, but the top door could be cut off. The stairway's burning now. There's twenty girls penned up in there, and the smoke will get them sure before the flames."

Burke nodded grimly. The hook and ladder had drawn up outside.

"I'll go up and get them to the window," he said. "Hurry up the ladder."

A great stillness fell on the waiting crowd that lined the street beyond the stretched ropes. As the big ladder were put in position it leaked out that one fireman had gone to fight his way up through the burning stairs to save the fifth floor lazees. Then all at once a cheer went up, and O'Ferrall looked up. The ladders were up, two of them, and steadily working their way down each one were two fire ladders, each with a limp girl's figure over an arm. O'Ferrall knew what it meant.

But he reached the floor and was getting the girls to the windows, and the big, smooth faced policeman shut his lips tighter and thanked God for the place that lies in the smoke eater's heart.

Burke counted the girls as he made his way back and forth through the smoke, swiftly, grimly, gasping now and then at the window, then going back for more. Some had fainted, but most were anxious to help and kept their nerve. As he landed on the fifth floor he saw the girls. McManus out of the window he asked where Margery was. Sue was the last of the regular girls.

"She's left over," he said, trying to shut the safety doors. "Sue told him sobbingly. 'You'll never see her, Tom.'"

Burke looked back. A hook and ladder boy was yelling to him to get out, that the floor was weakening.

"Wait! One more!" he answered, and went at the thick black smoke that hid where the stairway had been.

He never knew afterward how he had found her. It seemed a frightful nightmare of feeling wildly at "Tingling fields of flame that tugged and thrustled him and choked out his life by inches. And then somewhere in the dry hell he had found her, the slender, limp figure and lifted it in his arms, close to his heart.

There was just one thing about that rescue that Margery never was sure of until long after her wedding day. Then one autumn night when O'Ferrall had moved in to the new home he saw a brotherly blessing Burke told.

"If I didn't think it was all up with me, I never would have done it," he explained indignantly, "but when I measured the distance to the window and heard the last crash back of me I just thought it was quick before my mine and then death, and I kissed her, kissed her and never had an introduction to her even. But it didn't matter. Dead or alive, I knew I had the right. She was the only girl in the world for me."

And Mrs. Burke blushed thickly and ran her hand over the thick brown curls of her smoke eater.

"Ain't he the bold boy, though?" she said tenderly. "I knew it all the time and thought it was a dream, but I knew it just the same."

The General's Advice.

Somebody—it doesn't matter who—was walking along Wall street the other day when he met General Roger A. Pratt.

"Pratt," he said, "I've seen you a lot. I don't feel by twenty-five at least. Do you know, I met my old friend Choate the other day—he's eight years younger than I—and I slapped him on the back—and I said, 'How are you, Choate?' and he wined like a woman, sleep, sir, like a woman. The whole trouble is that he doesn't hold his shoulders up, and I told him so. If they'd hold their shoulders up they'd look younger and feel younger."

"I never said that," said the man who was talking to the general. "The reason nobody would think me eighty-five. Good day, my boy."

And he strode down Wall street, his tall, gaunt torso swayed and his chin up.—New York Post.

OLD AGE IS ONLY A GERM.

And When We Find the Antitoxin We'll Stay Young Till We Die.

It seems that according to most recent discoveries old age is not a natural result of years, but a microbe. At least this is claimed by the scientist Hetchcroft of the Pasteur Institute in Paris.

It is not necessary that people should feel burdened with years and grow feeble and exhausted as the months roll late years. All that is due to a microbe in the body, and when science can successfully combat the poisonous effects of the microbe we can live on, perhaps not longer, but without any discomfort until the end comes. He bases his theory on his observations of mammals as compared with birds.

A dog or a horse, for instance, shows distinct signs of age. It grows feeble and decrepit and breaks down in every way. But birds do not. A duck that is twenty years old shows no signs of advanced age. Parrots remain for long years in a youthful state and retain their brilliant plumage. In the case of a parakeet which, according to reliable information, is seventy to seventy-five years old it is impossible to recognize old age, so entirely normal is its appearance and so easy its movements.

The cause, it is claimed, lies in the difference in the intestines in mammals and birds. The latter are so built that the microbes which are so abundant in the intestines of the mammals do not or cannot accumulate in the bird. In the mammal they increase each year to year, and the toxic effect from these intestinal sources produces the phenomenon which we call "old age."—Chicago Tribune.

CONEY ISLAND'S NEW GAME.

Fine Fun For a Man Who Wants to Work Off a Grouch.

"Break-up on baseball" is the name of Coney Island's new amusement. It is warranted to cure any grouch and affords an escape for any amount of surplus steam or energy. Whether of the suffrage or any other type of enthusiasm.

The game is simply to pay one or more nickels for the purpose of enabling perfectly good dishes until the groch has worn off and the fit of de-grouchiness is over. It is very simple and has been in patent on the idea. All that is required is to provide dishes for persons to smash and a place in which to catch them.

It is a variation of the old game in which you throw baseballs at a large number of dolls or at a negro's head and every time you take a hit you receive a cigar or a cane. But in the new game there are no prizes of any kind. All one gets for his money is the satisfaction one always feels when he has made something break. Over one stand in Surf avenue is a large sign saying:

IF YOU CAN'T BREAK UP YOUR OWN HOME BREAK UP OTHERS.

At the back of the stand are rows of porcelain plates, so close together that one cannot help but smash one at every throw. At the counter in front are a number of baseballs, and when one has taken three shots he is given a nickel. The joy of smashing something has generally seized hold of him, and he keeps throwing ball after ball.—New York Herald.

Under Water Nine Hours.

That man who lay under water in a submarine boat for nine hours and still survive was proved recently. A submarine of the Russian navy sank at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. It was almost before the salvage ship succeeded in raising it. Three of the crew were still conscious and got out when the hatchway was opened. The other seven were unconscious, but soon recovered. They had known that the rescuers were at work, for the boat was equipped with a telephone connected with a floating buoy. Perhaps they might not have held out so well if they had not been aware of what was going on above them.—Youth's Companion.

Steel Furniture.

Sheet steel is the latest material utilized in the making of furniture. It is used for sideboards, wardrobes, chairs, bookshelves, writing desks and is finished in a variety of colors. The use of steel woods that the difference cannot be detected. The wood finish is applied under a very high temperature, becoming an integral part of the metal and never cracking. This unique furniture has the recommendation of being fire proof, and a lighted match left on a covered steel sideboard would have no effect whatever on its surface.—London Globe.

Moths and Carpets.

If moths have attacked a carpet you need not ponder long as to what to do. Just wherever there is a sign of the insects and scatter it under the furniture.

ALL ROUND THE YEAR.

Blaise whiffed away the spring—Teaching me the name of love. Doleful in the song I sing—Blaise moved a little thing. As the April skies above.

But her former face returned. Blaise in the summer time Drew me (ill) my spirit burned. And my pulse beat in time With the music of his tune.

From its palm I caught my heart In the autumn, rather cooled, Then up I went to my cart—Fighting as I was easily carted. Ah, but my love was lost!

Heaven, of the passing year, Could not like the others be. Yes, I thought with not a fear Surely she must be sincere. But she now has lifted me.

Do not child me if I sigh. For my heart has sorely died. You can woman's wise defy? Try to share mine if I die. Am so easily mislead.

The Mouths of Babes.

"I love—No, don't you?" asked the little girl with the pretty braided down her back.

"I do not," answered the acid dog old maid. "If there's anything I hate it's cats."

"But why do you?"

"Because cats scratch you, that's why."

"I know, but that's because you stroke 'em the wrong way. You gotta stroke cats diffrent from the way you treat folks."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Catch in the Eye.

Anxious inquirer in insurance of $50,000—understand that for $5 I can insure my house for $10,000.

"Thank you, madam. If your house burns down we pay you $10,000. Inquire—And do you make any inquiries as to the origin of the fire?"

"Clerk—We make the most careful inquiries, madam."

Inquire—Ah! I thought there was a catch in it somewhere.—Chicago Record-Herald.

HIS PLAN BEARS FRUIT

DR. RODDICK SEES CONSUMPTION OF HIS DREAM.

Widely-known Doctor, Who Has Labored for Years to Place Medical Professions of the Various Provinces on an Equal Footing, Has Completed His Work—Old Provincial Troubles at an End.

The delegates who attended the first Dominion Medical Council at Ottawa recently were enthusiastic in their praise of Dr. T. G. Roddick, of Montreal, and the success of their first annual session of the new body.

Dr. Roddick is the man who bore the burden of the big light to bring about general medical registration for the Dominion. The subject has been for him one of steady and persistent work for years and his efforts have at last been brilliantly crowned with success. Now he has succeeded in obtaining a universal standard of medical examination for the Dominion of Canada, and, what is more, he has induced the various provincial medical boards to co-operate and work in harmony with the Dominion board.

He took up this fight several years ago, and he has now won the House of Commons for the St. Antoine division of Montreal. He got the federal Parliament to pass a law establishing a Dominion Licensing Board with the consent of the various provinces. These licenses are to hold good in any part of Canada. This bill passed the Parliament in 1912. Since then Dr. Roddick has energetically devoted himself to winning over the medical bodies in the provinces and now registration lists for medical men will be opened, opening them for the whole Dominion. Examinations for the purpose will be held at Montreal Oct. 1.

All Canadian physicians in any province of ten years' standing will be registered on payment of a fee of $100 without examination. New doctors by passing the examinations of the new Dominion board will be qualified to practice anywhere in the Dominion. The change marks an epoch in the medical history of the Dominion and is considered a great stride forward as far as medical education is concerned. Formerly medical students were subjected to much inconvenience and annoyance on account of the petty provincial spirit which prevailed in medical practice in Canada. Thanks to Dr. Roddick and his co-laborers, this grievance has been removed.

In recognition of his invaluable service in this cause the medical men of the Dominion have elected him president of the new medical council of Canada.

Boy Scouts Light Town.

The town of Wyndomham, in Norfolk, England, about which much was heard during the great flood of 1904, is again achieving notoriety, this time on account of having been plunged in darkness at night since the middle of April. As the result of a bit of economy of the parish meeting, which controls the lighting of the town, the supply has been cut off much earlier than usual, and the curious spectacle is consequently seen of a troop of Boy Scouts parading the public streets with Chinese lanterns to light the footsteps of the inhabitants and travelers passing through the town from Norwich and elsewhere. The residents also try to make it more show by illuminating their houses with candles stuck to glass jars. The parish meeting considered the present light estimate of sevenpence in the pound too much and, despite the advice of their lighting inspectors, decided not to spend more than a shilling rate.

Unless first plated with nickel soft metals, such as lead, tin and zinc, will absorb platings of copper, silver or gold and so render superior metal entirely useless.

A Record in Teetotaling.

Perhaps the most extraordinary teetotaling idea ever carried out was that of a coachman, who, at the time of the Dreyfus case, showed his body was covered with no fewer than 120 illustrations of the case, including portraits of the leading persons. Altogether the work occupied nearly two years.

Pure Food and Fashion Exhibition

Probably the biggest event ever staged in the Canadian West will be the Pure Food and Fashion Exhibition which will be held in Calgary from October 18th to 28th inclusive.

The handsome new Horse Show Building at Victoria Park, has been secured for this great event, and this alone is a sign that the display of Pure Foods and Fashions will eclipse anything of its kind ever attempted in Western Canada.

Manager Cheeseman, the man behind the gun in this great undertaking, has had several years experience in conducting Pure Food Expositions in the Middle West and south. He is also head of the Art Decorating Company of Calgary, and his training in this line of work will be of great value in making the Pure Food Show attractive.

As well as having secured all of the leading manufacturers in the Dominion to make exhibits of their products, Manager Cheeseman has made arrangements with the Manitoba Government to have their wonderful tubercular exhibit shown at this exposition. This exhibit as well as showing the different stages of this dreaded disease, due in a great measure to the uses of impure foods, will point out why people should be careful in the selection of what they eat and wear.

This Pure Food Exposition will be a blessing to many a household. The problems of the home will be demonstrated—explained by those who know. There will be cooking competitions—an educational course in good living. Interspersed with these object lessons, there will be staged twice daily a Vaudeville Show of the best, as well as a midway of several of the best shows obtainable.

Excursion rates will be in force on all railroads. Make your plans early to attend the Pure Food and Fashions Exposition, and don't forget the dates—October 18th to 28th inclusive.

IN BRITAIN

Small Wages and National Labor Unrest

A London, England, cable to the Toronto Star (Liberal) reads:—

"The outbreak of small strikes in the Midlands has assumed proportions and the character of an epidemic. The most striking feature is the rapidity with which unrest springs up among the unskilled sorts of the black country. Whole masses of the poorest class of laborers, male and female, are out, and more are following daily. Their condition may be inferred from the fact of their having demanded a minimum wage of $5.75 a week, which means an advance of $1.25 over the present standard. The trouble is likely to spread further, for there has recently been a large but imperfectly known mushroom growth of trade unions among unskilled and unorganized workers. The truth is that some amelioration in the condition of this class is long overdue. Only poverty and lack of combination has delayed the agitation for it so long."

A flour mill, having a capacity of 1,800 bbls per day, is being erected by The Ford Milling Co. in Swift Current, Sask.

HARD ON LABOR

Free Trade Sacrifices Workmen Fairly

United States and German manufacturers continually underbid British steel manufacturers for large contracts in Australia, Africa, South America, China and other parts of the world. In these instances the British wage-earner is sacrificed to no purpose. In a vain effort to undersell the products of protected labor in foreign countries his employer pays him a low free trade wage. Such expansion of foreign trade as the United Kingdom does enjoy is too often at the expense of the ordinary workers in factory, mill and field. The time cannot be far distant when the workmen of the Old Land will rise against this Cobden doctrine that nothing should be done for the masses of laborers. They are going to try protection as a means of securing steadier work and better wages and of generally improving their own condition.
